MEDICINAL.

Frequent Throbbing Headache.

There's many a cause for headache. Men are not often troubled by headaches. When they are it is generally due to biliousness or indigestion. But women have headaches which seem peculiar to their sex, frequent nervous throbbing headaches. Does it not seem as if such headaches peculiar to women must be at once related to womanly disease? Women who suffer with diseases peculiar to the sex do not realize the degree of vital strength and nerve force they undergo as a consequence of disease. It is this which causes the familiar headaches of sick women.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures such headaches by curing the cause—irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration or female weakness. "Favorite Prescription" invigorates and tones up the entire system, encourages the appetite, quiets the nerves and gives refreshing sleep.

"I was troubled with congestion of the uterus and female weakness for five years," writes Mrs. R. K. Kerwin, of Albert, Hastings Co., Ont. "I was so weak and nervous I could hardly do any work. Had severe pain in back, also dizziness and pain in head. My heart would beat so hard and fast at times I would have to sit still till I got it right again. But after taking four bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and one of his 'Golden Medical Discovery' I felt entirely well. I also used one box of 'Lotion Tablets' and one of 'Suppositories' as directed. All the symptoms of my trouble have disappeared and I am completely cured. I thank you for your kind advice and your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets clear the complexion and sweeten the breath.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S ADDRESS.

Former President Cleveland presided last night at a public meeting in aid of the Bureau Manual Training School in Philadelphia, an institution which aims to give members of the negro race the benefits of an industrial education. The meeting was attended by prominent jurists, educators, and business men. Mr. Cleveland was the principal speaker, and Booker T. Washington, president of the Tuskegee Institute, also made an address.

Mr. Cleveland's address was in part as follows:

"We are called together in furtherance of purposes which are not only of the utmost beneficence, but which, for every reason, are deserving of serious and prompt consideration. It has often occurred to me that ever since we have become a nation the Americans have almost constantly been confronted with large problems, more or less perplexing and directly affecting the political, industrial, and social phases of our national welfare. We seem to have a contented notion that, whatever dangers press upon us, and whatever obstacles are to be surmounted, we are able because we seem to be able, and that because we have thus far escaped threatening perils, a happy-go-lucky reliance on continued good fortune will avail us to the end of the chapter. I am impressed with the importance of this occasion. It is absolutely certain that everywhere in this broad land good people shall be keenly alive to their duties and interest as related to the colored men, women, youth, and children, who constitute a factor, large or small, in the population of every community. It is foolish for us to blind our eyes to the fact that more should be done to improve the condition of our negro population; and it should be entirely plain to all of us that the sooner this is undertaken the sooner will a serious duty be discharged and the more surely will we guard ourselves against future trouble and danger. Our colored people have been supplied with a measure of public school privileges, even though in this they have been at a disadvantage as compared with their white neighbors. We will not fail to estimate at its true value what has thus been accomplished; nor will we fail to appreciate the importance of continued and increasing effort in extending to this class of our citizens opportunities for ordinary school education. No one who has given the subject deliberate thought can doubt that if we are to be just and fair toward our colored fellow-citizens, and if they are to be more completely made self-respecting, useful and safe members of our body politic, they must be taught to do something more than to hew wood and draw water. The way must be opened for them to engage in something better than menial service, and their interest must be aroused to rewards of intelligent occupation and careful thrift. I believe that the exigency can only be adequately met through the instrumentalities of well-equipped manual training and industrial schools, conducted either independently or in connection with ordinary educational institutions. I am convinced that good citizenship, an orderly, contented life, and a proper conception of civic virtue and obligations are almost certain to grow out of a fair chance to earn an honest, hopeful livelihood and a satisfied sense of progression and a satisfied sense of progress. The objects of our assemblage are to learn the details of the work done by a manual training and industrial school located in the city of Philadelphia and to extend to our aid and encouragement. Though still young, the Bureau Manual Training and Industrial School has abundantly justified its existence and demonstrated its power for good. It has passed so far beyond an experimental stage that its usefulness is seriously cramped by a lack of means and the want of necessary accommodations. Surely, if the liberal citizens of Philadelphia are once satisfied that their duty to their less fortunate colored neighbors demands the increased success of this institution, it should not be difficult to induce them to extend to it a helping hand. We cannot anticipate that its neglect will be chargeable against the people of this philanthropic and patriotic city."

ANDREW CARNEGIE ARRIVES.—As stated in the Gazette the White Star Line steamer Oceanic, on which Andrew Carnegie was a passenger, arrived early yesterday morning at New York from Liverpool and Queenstown, after a stormy passage of six days, twenty hours and twenty-three minutes. "This is the sorriest homecoming I have ever had," said Mr. Carnegie. "I cannot tell you how badly I felt when I heard of Tom Reed's death. He was a lifelong friend and a very dear one. I received a cable before I left London telling me of his condition, but the news of his death was a shock. My recent trouble was of the same nature as his, but no operation was necessary. The sea has toned me up wonderfully, so that I feel in first
